Wrigley Makes Catalina Isle Of Million Twinkling Lights

Catalina, the isle of a million twinkling lights! Light, light, everywhere!

Every bay and every cove is fronted with a jeweled necklace of electric lights. For miles in either direction from the little city of Avalon the contour of Catalina Island is outlined with garlands of electric lights, visible for miles out at sea. On a clear night these lights are often clearly discernible from Long Beach and promenaders on the beach front often point out Catalina Island, blazing like a jewel of a million scintillating lights on the black velvet bosom of the sea.

Every residence on the hill-tops and terraces of Avalon is outlined with myriads of colored lights. In the bay a fleet of yachts is studded with bobbing, twinkling lights. From the tower of the new Catalina Island Yacht Club a powerful searchlight sweeps the sea with figures of light. Along the water front the pavilion, business houses, Tuna Club, Casino and Hotel St. Catherine are etched in a blaze of light from thousands of electric globes. Piers and club boat landings run out to sea, jetties of golden light.

The fame of the great Wrigley sign in New York, which for years was the greatest electric sign in the world, has only been eclipsed by Wm. Wrigley's whole island of light in the Pacific at the portals of Long Beach. Mr. Wrigley's motto seems to be "Let us have light on the subject."
And he doesn't seem satisfied with light merely on the surface of things. He has equipped the famed glass-bottom boats with huge thousand-candlepower lights to throw light on the habits of the scurrying crabs, gliding eels and many-colored fish in the Submarine Gardens and reveal them to the eyes of man. Powerful searchlights sweep the surface of the sea from the bows of the swift "Blanche-W" and the "Betty-O," the two pleasure boats which nightly take sightseers on excursions to see the dancing of the flying fish.

Near the center of Catalina Island, at the base of Mt. Black Jack, the highest mountain on the island, Mr. Wrigley has tunneled and sunk shafts far into the darkness underground and thrown light into the bowels of the earth. Power lines are built over steep mountains, yawning ravines and chasms to bring light to this remote point. Here precious metals, copper, silver and lead ore, have been found, running from $150 per ton to $300 per ton.

Evidently Mr. Wrigley intends to know all about the island he bought some six years ago. So far
